

Raised trunk lid serves as a good daytime warning that your car is stopped for repairs. Visible a long way off, it gives other drivers time to stop or go around when you are caught on a section of road where it's impossible to pull off.

An armrest that fits over the window sill lets the driver rest his arm during long trips without burning it on hot car metal. Woven seat-cover material is cemented to a piece of aluminum shaped to slip between door and window glass.

A litter container stores family trash until it can be emptied at a service station or at home—instead of on the highway. A bicycle basket hangs from hooks bolted to a panel under the dash and is easily removed and replaced.

Hook up a timing light quickly with a bent cotter pin. One leg of the pin slips into the distributor cap's No. 1 spark-plug socket; the timing-light cable clamps on the other. The distributor is often easier to reach than the plug.
